Residents upset over planned sidewalks in Belfountain

By Bill Rea

Peel Region has completed its study of the roads around Belfountain, and local residents are not very pleased with what's being recommended.

In fact, officials of Belfountain Community Organization (BCO) collected signatures on a petition over the weekend. BCO President Jenni Le Forestier said they collected 338 signatures over the two days, and the efforts are going to continue.

The study of the roads in the area was commissioned by the Region and lasted about two years. There were a couple of public sessions as part of the study, and residents continuously made it clear there was no desire to see a lot of changes.

The study took in Bush Street and Old Main Street in the hamlet, as well as Mississauga Road to the south, Olde Base Line Road and Winston Churchill Boulevard.

The environmental study report (which takes up three large binders) addressed the road situation in the hamlet.

For Bush Street, from a spot about 150 metres east of Shaws Creek Road to Mississauga Road (Old Main Street), the recommendation mendations call for a 9.3-metre road with a 1.7-metre paved shoulder on one side.

DNA tests lead to arrest

Use of a DNA sample has helped Caledon OPP make an arrest in a break-in that occurred almost five years ago.

Police report a house under construction on Finnerty Sideroad was entered Aug. 31, 2009. At that time, it was reported that the suspect(s) got into the garage, disabled the alarm and stole approximately $50,000 worth of appliances. While at the residence, they caused extensive damage to the new construction.

During the course of the investigation, officers seized a soda pop can and a water bottle for DNA analysis. Once the samples were collected, they were forwarded to the Centre of Forensic Sciences.

Investigation has revealed that the suspect in this incident was arrested in another jurisdiction and he was ordered by the court to provide a DNA sample. A confirmed match between the sample taken at the scene of the break-in and the court ordered sample resulted in a confirmed identity.

The result is a 41-year-old man from Caledon was charged with break and enter, as well as mischief over $5,000.

Quote of the week

"It's just amazing growth. The whole community's behind this." Tour de Terra Cotta founder Ted Webb, commenting on the growth of the event over 10 years.

Caledon’s schools name their top scholars

Mayfield’s top scholar is looking forward to life in Montreal

By Bill Rea
Commencement at Mayfield Secondary School is still some weeks away.
But graduate Michelle Shi said she’s looking forward to it. And she has a special reason to have anticipation.
She’s the top graduating scholar in Mayfield’s Class of ‘14.
Shi accomplished this with a 97.8 per cent average in her six Grade 12 courses. She received marks of 99 in advanced functions, English, calculus and data management, as well as 96 per cent in chemistry and 95 in earth and space sciences.
She’ll be collecting her award in November.
“It will be nice to come back after university,” she commented.

She will be coming back from McGill University in Montreal, where she plans to study business and commerce.
“I like the campus and I like the city,” she said, commenting on her post-secondary selection. “The school has a great reputation.”
Shi said she’s also looking forward to getting away from home and experiencing some independence. “And I’d really like to learn some French while I’m there too,” she added.
As well, Shi said there’s lots of potential for business contacts in Montreal. She said she’s not made any definite career plans yet, but she might like to start her own business, possibly involving the music industry. Exposure to a city like Montreal, along with certain courses and people she expects to meet there, should help in that direction.

“I just want to go with the flow for now and see,” she said.
Shi commented that she’s been part of the arts and drama program at Mayfield.
“It really helped me develop as a person,” she said, adding she was also involved in bands and choirs.
Coming out on top of her class was a bit of a surprise for Shi. She said her marks were good in Grade 9, but it wasn’t until Grade 10 that she started getting close to the top. The following year, she got the highest marks in all her classes.
“That was a big surprise to me,” she remarked, adding it helped set her goal for Grade 10.
“I just really tried my best,” she said. “That’s all you can do, really.”
“I aim to do the best I can do, and see how far that takes me,” she added.
When it comes to the secret of academic success, Shi said it’s “balancing everything,” adding it involves prioritizing between life, curriculum, family, friends, etc.

She also said it involves to adapting to different teaching styles, adding her experience in drama helped in that area.
“Adapting and organization are the two most important things,” she said.
And in the final analysis, Shi said there’s really no secret.
“If you’re going to do anything, you might as well give it your all.”
Shi is not working this summer, as she plans to spend the next couple of weeks travelling. That includes a trip to her future stomping grounds. “It’s kind of like a preview of what Montreal’s going to be like,” she said.
And it is an experience she’s looking forward to.
“Just making new friends and meeting new people,” she said. “Living in Montreal, eating poutine and other parts of living in Montreal.”

Hall’s top scholar devoted this year to doing ‘my absolute best’

By Bill Rea
Rose Ferrao’s goal was to average at least 95 per cent average in her top six Grade 12 courses this year at Robert F. Hall Catholic Secondary School, and she got it.
She actually took eight courses, and the bottom two pulled her average down to 94.1.
But all things considered, her performance got her the Governor General’s Award and the status of top scholar as she graduated as part of Hall’s Class of ‘14.
“It was really nice,” she reflected. “Getting this award was like a validation of all the work I had put in over the year.”
The results were impressive.
The 18-year-old received a grade of 98 per cent in her top course, which was business. Ferrao followed that up with 97 in French, 96 in film, 96 in religion, 94 in music (she plays the flute), 91 in math, 91 in English and 90 in writer’s craft.
“I definitely put in a lot more work this year than I have in any other year in school,” she remarked, adding the process taught her the importance of getting an early start and better organizing her time.
“It was a lot of work, but it was definitely worth it.”

“One year, I wanted to do my absolute best,” she added.
When it comes to what the secret is to achieving academic success, Ferrao cited curiosity as a big factor.
“I’ve always been a really curious person,” she said. “I was always interested in becoming invested in what we were doing in school.”
And through it all, she still found time for some extra-curricular activities, with her involvement in the student council, concert band and book club.
Ferrao’s next academic exploits will be at Queen’s University next year, in the honours BA program, in which she hopes to major in English and minor in film.
“My dream job in the future would be a screen writer,” she said, adding if she can do something that makes her and other people happy, she won’t complain.
And for students who are embarking on the high school experience, she had some tips.
“Just make the most of it,” she said.
“It can be really nerve-wracking at first,” she added, but stressed the importance of putting effort into classes, extra-curricular activities and meeting new people. “It will honestly be the best experience of your life.”

Board had more than 3,000 Ontario Scholars

The Dufferin-Peel Catholic District School Board has announced its top scholars for the 2013-14 school year.
Stella Lau from St. Francis Xavier Secondary School in Mississauga is the board’s top scholar with an average of 99.33 per cent. She has received admission offers from both the University of Waterloo and the University of Cambridge in the United Kingdom.
Students must achieve an average of 80 per cent or higher on their top six Grade 12 courses to be an Ontario Scholar. This year, 3,167 Dufferin-Peel students earned this distinction.

“One of the Ontario Catholic School Graduate Expectations is to be a self-directed, responsible, lifelong learner who develops and demonstrates their God-given potential,” said Director of Education John B. Kostoff. “Marks like these represent students who are tapping into that potential demonstrating exceptional study habits and dedication. Such qualities will serve them well as they continue their academic journey at their chosen post-secondary institutions and beyond.”

Top scholar from St. Michael looking to do it by the numbers

By Bill Rea

Angela Stewart is pretty good with numbers — in fact, she’s very good. Stewart is the top graduating scholar in the Class of ‘14 at St. Michael Catholic Secondary School in Bolton, achieving a final average of 98.3 per cent on her top six courses. Three of those courses were maths, and she got 100 per cent in all three, along with 98 in accounting, 97 in religion, 95 in computer science and 94 in economics.

She plans to continue with her math and accounting studies next year when she attends the University of Waterloo,

Humberview’s top scholar stresses importance of being focused

By Bill Rea

Mackenzie Claggett is interested in philosophy and politics, and he hopes to put them to use in the days to come. He should do well at that, and he has the marks from school to prove it. Claggett, 18, finished at the top of the Class of ‘14 that is graduating this year from Humberview Secondary School in Bolton.

He finished up with a 98.83 per cent average, and that included three perfect scores — in law, philosophy and world issues. His other courses saw grades of 99 per cent in economics, 98 in English and 96 in biology.

Claggett said the secret to academic success is actually rather simple.

“Hard work and setting goals for yourself,” he said. “Just staying focused on school. Staying committed to your education.”

Claggett said he’s always done well in school, although he said he hadn’t thought he was going to finish at the top of his class. He observed that he was in with a lot of other talented students.

“I was really focused,” he explained. “One of my goals was just to do as well as I possibly could.”

He also said the work was more in the interests of a personal achievement, as opposed to getting into a good school.

As for the future, Claggett said he plans to go to Western next year to study political science, and after that, he’s hoping to attend law school.

“That’s just what I’ve always been interested in,” he explained. “I’m good at debating.”

He also like philosophy, commenting his favourite philosopher was probably Simone de Beauvoir.

“I could relate to what she was saying and could apply it to issues I had read about,” he said.

Although he was focused on his studies, Claggett said he found time for other activities, such as the Mentorship program at Humberview, the Clean Team environmental group and Mock Trial. He also tutored at school.

During the summer, he’s working as a lifeguard and swimming instructor.

Claggett stressed that staying focused on education was the best advice he could offer students entering high school.

“Don’t burden yourself with too many responsibilities,” he said, adding getting involved in too many activities can be distracting, and that can take a toll. “You need to find a proper balance to ensure that can adequately complete assignments to the best of your ability.”

He also suggested students take courses that are appropriate for them and that they are going to like.

“If you don’t like a subject, your commitment to that class is going to decrease,” he said.

and she eventually hopes to get her CPA certification in accounting. She is also thinking about becoming a forensic accountant.

Placing at the top of her class earned Stewart at Governor General’s Award at the school’s Commencement last month, although she admitted she really wasn’t expecting it.

“I worked really hard,” she said, adding she was able to maintain a balance between academics and extra-curricular activities.

She also said she tried to make sure she was “not being stressed out over everything.”

Stewart said her best years academically were the last two, when she found herself getting especially interested in her courses, particularly the ones involving the maths, accounting and economics. And when it came to extra-curricular activities, she was part of the DECA Business club, and also played for the school’s basketball, curling and softball teams. Away from school, she played basketball in the Caledon Cougars’ organization.

Stewart said she’s looking forward to experiencing more independence in university, a she observed this will be her first tie away from home for an extended period. She also said she’s hoping to take part in intermural activities, and possible join some clubs on campus.

For people facing the start of their high school years, Stewart stressed the importance of hard work.

“Work hard,” is what she said she would advise. “Try their best. Put their full effort into everything.”

She also stressed the need to maintain a balance, pointing out it’s possible to have fun while studying hard.

GOODBYE MR. STEGEMAN

Ellwood Memorial Public School’s retiring principal John Stegeman insisted on being photographed with students his last day on the job. “It has been an amazing journey,” he had previously stated in his retirement speech as he reflected on 55 years he’s been in school, both as a student and teacher. He was principal at Ellwood for seven and a half years. “I couldn’t have wished for a better school to retire from because every day was a great day at Ellwood Memorial.” He also said in retirement, he plans to travel with his wife, try to play some golf, read and continue volunteering in town.

OPP to crack down on ‘move over’ law violators this weekend

The law requires motorists to move over a lane, if they can, when they are approaching an emergency vehicle parked at the side of the road with its lights activated.

But OPP are concerned with the number of people who don't obey that law.

After 10 years of education efforts, which has included more than 11,000 charges on record since the law came into effect, OPP officers are dismayed to see a slow but steady increase in the number of "move over" charges it has laid against drivers since 2010.

Police will be looking to drivers to help them reinforce the importance of the law by setting a good example and observing this law over the upcoming Civic Day long weekend.

The Highway Traffic Act requires drivers to slow down and proceed with caution when passing an emergency vehicle parked on the side of the highway with its lights activated. If the highway has more than one lane, the law requires the driver to move over and leave one lane between their vehicle and the parked emergency vehicle if it can be done safely. Failure to do so can result in a fine of $400 to $2,000, plus three demerit points.

There were 1,502 charges in 2013, and the number has increased steadily since 2010, when the OPP issued 1,067 such charges against Ontario drivers. The increase suggests that many drivers may be unaware of this law aimed at keeping police and other emergency responders safe on the roadside. Since 1989, five OPP officers have been killed as a result of being struck by a vehicle while doing their job on the roadside and many more have been injured. The OPP's law enforcement and other safety partners have also lost colleagues in these situations.

"The OPP would like to see full compliance with this law indicating that drivers are fully on board with helping us keep officers and all other emergency responders safe on the roadside," said Chief Superintendent Chuck Cox, provincial commander of the OPP Highway Safety Division. "With the higher volumes of traffic on long weekends, police and other emergency personnel respond to far more calls for service at the roadside, making it a particularly important time to move over a lane when able to do so safely."

Over the weekend, OPP will also be asking road users to help them keep roads safe and free of aggressive, distracted and impaired driving behaviours and by ensuring that all vehicle occupants are buckled up.

Operation Dry Water launching this weekend

Drinking and boating accounts for approximately 40 per cent of boating-related fatalities on Canadian waterways.

To raise awareness and reduce alcohol related deaths, the Canadian Safe Boating Council (CSBC) is launching the second year of an initiative called Operation Dry Water. Its goal is to discourage this dangerous practice.

With the summer boating season in high gear, the Aug. 2 long weekend is the perfect time to remind Canadian boaters about the risks of drinking and boating. Combined with sun, wind, waves and the rocking motion of the boat, the effects of alcohol on the water can be greatly increased.

"The CSBC and its partners would like, through this initiative, to raise attention to the problem of boating under the influence and to remind boaters not to drink and boat," stated CSBC Chair Jean Murray.

Operation Dry Water will focus on the potential risks of drinking and boating, and remedies that are currently in place to discourage it.

Federal statutes dictate that, whether or not a craft is motorized, the operator can be charged with impaired operation of a vessel under the Criminal Code of Canada if their blood alcohol level exceeds the legal threshold. This means a person can be charged even if they are impaired while operating a canoe and a judge is able to, upon conviction, suspend their boating privileges. But that's not all; it can get worse.

In Ontario, Bill 209 amended the Highway Traffic Act to also applies to "anyone operating or having the care or control of a vessel." As such, anyone found boating with a blood alcohol level above .05, faces an on-the-spot automobile drivers' licence suspension. Should the person's blood alcohol concentration exceed .08, upon conviction, an additional suspension of up to one year can be applied.

Operation Dry Water is aimed at reducing the number of alcohol-related accidents and fatalities on the water while fostering a stronger and more visible deterrent to alcohol use while boating. The end goal? To achieve safer and more enjoyable recreational boating.

Laptops stolen from house

Caledon OPP reports two laptop computers were reported stolen June 6 after a home on Hilltop Drive in Caledon East was entered.

Police report the incident took place sometime between 5 p.m. and midnight. Those responsible apparently got in through an unlocked door and stole a Hewlett Packard laptop and an Apple Mac Pro laptop.

Anyone with information on this incident is asked to contact police at 905-584-2241 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Man faces several charges

A Caledon OPP officer noticed a fast car on Castlederg Sideroad June 21.

The result is a 23-year-old Caledon man is facing several charges.

Police said the officer was patrolling in the area at around 3:30 a.m. and noticed the westbound BMW travelling at high speed, and then make an abrupt turn onto Airport Road. The car was also being driven erratically, swerving in the lane and still going at high speed, so the officer pulled it over at the intersection of Old Church Road.

Upon speaking with the driver, the officer detected a strong indication of alcohol on his breath.

The man was charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle, driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his system and dangerous operation of a motor vehicle.

People out for Running of the Bulls

A good crowd was out at Caledon Fairgrounds Saturday to see the Running of the Bulls, and many of those on hand took the dare and got into the ring with the featured attractions. Markdale resident Joe Borges has been running these events for 25 years. He explained the custom in Portugal is to have the bulls run through the streets, with young men taking the opportunity to show off, using nothing but their courage and fleetness of foot. Some times, it took a bit of persuading to get one bull out of the ring so another could take its turn. DJ Tony Silveira of Burlington was providing entertainment between appearances of the bulls.

Orangeville Show Jumping Tournament celebrates 30th anniversary

By Angela Gismondi

The Orangeville Show Jumping Tournament features fun for the whole family. The 30th annual horse show, taking place from Aug. 14 to 17, features world-class show jumping in four competition rings — two jumper and two hunter — at the 84-acre Orangeville Agricultural Society (OAS) Event Centre.

“We have everything from Olympic level athletes, to amateurs level athletes to kids on ponies and everything in between,” said event organizer Ainsley Hayes. “It’s fun for the whole family, an event that everyone can come and enjoy.”

The Orangeville Show Jumping Tournament is run by the Hayes family, led by two-time Canadian Olympian Jay Hayes and his wife, Shawn, who act as the co-presidents of the tournament. Their three daughters, Lauren, Ainsley and Regan, all play vital roles in the competition’s organization and success. The family has been organizing show jumping tournaments in various locations across Ontario for 30 years. Three years ago the Hayes, who own a horse farm in Mono, decided to move the tournament closer to home. The OAS Event Centre was the perfect choice.

“It’s ideal for our sport,” said Ainsley. “The OAS has great footing naturally; sand over grass. It’s one of my dad’s favourite sayings ‘no foot, no horse. No footing, no horse show.’”

The tournament began in 1984 when a group of equestrian enthusiasts from all walks of life decided to get together and organize an event to celebrate the sport. The horse show was held in Sutton for two years until organizers decided to move it to Collingwood, where it was held for 21 years. There the event grew and in 1995, it became a two-week affair.

“There was a demand for more,” explained Hayes. “People loved the horse show and they didn’t just want to spend one week up there.”

After celebrating 21 years in Collingwood, the family moved their event to Nepean for four years.

“It was a great event, really well received by the community, but it was never home,” Hayes said, adding the tournament’s new home is right in the family’s backyard and helps support the community.

“This area and all the surrounding areas are horse communities,” she stated. “Being here in this area is really great for our sport. We live in this area and this event brings in a lot of tourism dollars. By bringing it closer to home, we are supporting and engaging our community.”

Hayes pointed out that it has become very expensive to travel in the last few years and bringing the event closer to home makes it more economical for people to participate and attend.

The Friday and Saturday of the show will offer the perfect opportunity to enjoy the sport at its best. Friday’s Derby Day culminates in the $5,000 Mitton/Lewtas Canadian Hunter Derby. Pack a picnic and enjoy a Pommies Dry Cider tailgate party while watching the horses and riders test their skills and finesse over natural obstacles on the open grass field. A full schedule of hunter classes are offered in the main hunter grass ring all week long, while Friday the ponies will compete on natural sand to celebrate Pony Day; including Pony Power Qualifiers.

Saturday night puts show jumping in the spotlight with the main event beginning at 6 p.m., the $50,000 CSI2* Zucarlos Grand Prix, presented by Kubota Canada and Stewart’s Equipment.

Other show jumping highlights include Thursday’s $5,000 Hayes Co. Open Welcome and Friday’s Mitton/Lewtas Family Jump Canada Talent Squad. Young Horse classes for five and six-year-olds will be held Saturday afternoon, as well as the very special seven and eight-year-old class held in memory of Lynn Millar, the late wife of 10-time Canadian Olympian Ian Millar. The Saturday afternoon session wraps up with the $2,500 Premier Marine 1.40m Junior/Amateur Classic. The event will also include a Kids Zone with activities for children of all ages.

Sunday features the $10,000 1.35m Highland Meadows Modified Grand Prix while the youngest riders on the show grounds will strut their stuff in the adorable headline competition. To cap off the week, the Iron Horse Farm Jumper Parade of Champions will recognize all of the outstanding performances at this year’s Orangeville Show Jumping Tournament, including the Equifit Inc. Top Trainer Award and the M. Michael Meller Style Award.

Throughout the week, spectators can enjoy the action from the ringside Champions Pub, open to all, or purchase seating in the VIP tent. Pommies Dry Cider will be flowing in both locations.

The Hayes family hopes to continue the event for many years to come.

“We hope to expand and keep growing,” said Ainsley. “It’s still a relatively new event in this area.”

The Fretless bringing folk tunes to Caledon August 5

By Tabitha Wells

It's no secret that this part of Ontario has a large number of folk and fiddle music fans.

From different events throughout the year to Shelburne's annual Fiddlefest, the area has become quite renowned for both its talent and draw for outside musicians to perform.

That's part of what led The Fretless to book one of their few Ontario shows at Knox United Church in Caledon this coming Tuesday (Aug. 5).

"There's a great fiddle community in Ontario that loves all genres and styles of fiddle music," explained Karrnnel Sawitsky, who is one of the two fiddle players in The Fretless. "We're very excited to bring our little flavour to that area."

Although the band has travelled extensively through Western Canada (including B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba) and around the East coast, they have not had a large presence in Ontario before. They had some dates free before returning to Saskatchewan for the Regina Folk Festival, and decided it would be worth setting up some shows.

The Fretless is made up of four band members, who form their classical formation quartet with two fiddles, a viola and a cello: Sawitsky, Trent Freeman, Ivonne Hernandez and Eric Wright. Despite being in a classical formation, their style of music falls into the folk music realm.

"The majority of our background is based around traditional fiddle music," Sawitsky commented. "We have influences from Canadian and American Olde-Time to Cape Breton, Irish and Scottish; it's just a variety of all of those kinds of styles."

He added that the group tries to combine all those styles as well as different playing techniques to create their own, unique sound.

"Our music is about the different styles and utilizing technique that classical music quartets would also use, but keeping it within the folk genre or style," he said. "We try to be something different, using a familiar quartet formation."

The band itself is from a combination of different backgrounds as well, with Freeman and Hernandez being from B.C, Sawitsky from Saskatchewan, and Wright from Vermont. The Canadian members met through the Canadian fiddle scene.

"The Canadian fiddle scene is relatively small and all kind of grew up playing in fiddle competitions against each other," Sawitsky observed. "We would see each other a few times a year and we kind of kept in touch over the years."

Freeman and Hernandez met with the fourth bandmate, Wright, through the Berklee College of Music, where they studied at the same time. Eventually the quartet decided to pursue performing together, and The Fretless was born.

"Ivonne had the idea to get this group together, gave us some calls, and the rest is history," Sawitsky said. "It's kind of a unique thing because we are from different areas, which makes it tough for travel, but it's kind of a good thing as well."

They're like the family that you're only with for tours, and then we disband and go home to our own families. It keeps it refreshing."

Their opportunity to perform in Caledon came through a local connection, Sarah Robinson, the new Curator at the Dufferin County Museum and Archives. The band met her around 10 years ago, within the Canadian fiddle scene as well, and have kept in touch over the years. Robinson has even opened for some of Sawitsky's performances over the years.

The Fretless are using their tour to help promote their new, self-titled album, which was released in March. It is their second full album, and follows their first,

Waterbound, which won three awards including two Canadian Folk Music Awards and a Western Canadian Music Award in 2012 for Instrumental Album of the Year.

"We're just really looking forward to stepping into the Ontario folk-music scene and bringing our sound to the Caledon area," Sawitsky said. "It's a great chance to let people know who we are, and to have a presence in such a strong folk community."

The Fretless will be performing at Knox United Church in Caledon August 5 at 7 p.m. Tickets, at $20 for adults and $10 for youth 15 and under, include dessert at intermission. For tickets or more information, contact the church at 519-927-3320.

CELTIC CONCERT IN TERRA COTTA

The Celtic Fiddle Band of Georgetown put on a concert recently at Union Presbyterian Church near Terra Cotta. The band had a large audience to take in the performance.

PAMA remembers 100th anniversary of start of First World War

To commemorate the 100th anniversary of the start of the First World War, the Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) is presenting We Remember: Stories of Service and Sacrifice.

The exhibit opened this week, with a new collection of artifacts. It will pay tribute to the many Peel residents who served Canada during the conflict.

We Remember: Stories of Service and Sacrifice showcases letters, postcards, photographs and other documents sent home to Peel during the war. Peel residents served on the battlefield, behind the lines and contributed to the war effort on the homefront. The exhibition shares the personal stories of local soldiers and families living through historic events.

"The events of World War I touched the lives of all citizens in many ways and played a significant role in Peel's history," commented PAMA Manager Marty Brent. "Through the We Remember: Stories of Service and Sacrifice exhibition, we pay tribute to the efforts of these brave men and women and their influence on communities throughout Peel."

For many soldiers, serving in the war was their first time away from home. Writing and receiving letters was a source of comfort and a way to stay connected to their friends and family. The exhibition follows the lives of several soldiers and their friends and family back home through their postcards and letters. The letters and artifacts on display belong to the Archives and Museum collections at PAMA. As well, the exhibition features items on loan from the Lorne Scots Regimental Museum and the Royal Canadian Legion: Major William Dwight Sharpe, Branch 15.

The We Remember: Stories of Service and Sacrifice exhibition will remain on display for the rest of the year.

Operated by the Region of Peel, PAMA is at 9 Wellington St. E. in Brampton. Visit pama.peelregion.ca to learn more.

BCO getting their ‘ducks in a row’ an facilities along the study area roads,” the report stated. “Pedestrian activity is centres in the community of Belfountain, where the majority of commercial establishments and residences in the area are located.”

The petition BCO circulated over the weekend was addressed to the Ontario Legislature, and called upon the government to “uphold and enforce relevant legislation and the mandates of the Ministry of Environment, Ministry of Agriculture, Town of Caledon, the (Niagara Escarpment Commission), and (Credit Valley Conservation) to protect the water, environment, and heritage character of the Hamlet of Belfountain and environs.”

“We’re getting all of our ducks in a row,” Le Forestier commented last week. “We are quite concerned about how this could severely impact Belfountain.”

“This whole project was supposed to be for students going to Belfountain School and the Conservation Area,” she added.

Le Forestier pointed out students going to the school are bused, and the proposed sidewalks don’t go anywhere near Belfountain Conservation Area.

She also said the report does not address such issues as culverts, or six endangered species that are in the area.

She also said last week the residents were working on an appeal to the Ministry of the Environment. The necessary documents had to be filed by Tuesday this week (July 29).

“From then, we see if the decision is a ‘yea’ or a ‘nay,’” she said. “From there, we have to decide what our next steps will be.”

Le Forestier pointed out a lot of tourists travel to Belfountain to take in the natural area landscape, along with other attractions.

“We don’t think this Regional road project is taking into account any of those things,” she said.

Man arrested for having stolen licence plates

A 25-year-old Caledon man has been charged with possession of property obtained by crime.

The charge was laid June 26 after an officer from Caledon OPP spotted a Pontiac Sunfire in the area of Regional Road 50 and Hopcroft Road in Bolton shortly before 4 p.m. The car had a licence that was held on by only one screw.

The officer stopped the car and learned that the attached plate had been reported stolen to the Caledon Detachment in December.

Just what advice did Duffy get?

Perhaps it's a classic case where the two sides should enter a plea bargain, if only because memories will have faded.

As those who have been following the recent news developments know, Senator Mike Duffy is facing no fewer than 31 criminal charges stemming from an RCMP investigation of his expense claims and receipt of a $90,000 cheque from Nigel Wright, then Prime Minister Stephen Harper's chief of staff.

The most serious charge, an allegation of bribery, relates to the cheque, which Wright said he gave the senator so taxpayers would no longer be on the hook for disputed expense claims. It remains to be seen how the transaction could be seen to involve bribery, or why it is that no charge was laid against Wright.

But that's far from the only matter clouding the situation and making some sort of plea bargain attractive.

Were we in Senator Duffy's shoes, we would offer to resign from the Senate and repay some of the expense items, in particular per diem payments for activities that bore no relation to his senate duties, such as a Florida vacation and campaigning for the Conservatives in the 2011 federal election.

In return, the Crown could offer a disposition similar to one an Ontario Superior Court judge recently decided upon in the case of Joe Fontana, who resigned as mayor of London, after admitting to having billed the taxpayers for $1,700 in expenses for his son's wedding. The court meted out a conditional sentence that involves repayment of the $1,700, plus a period of house arrest and an obligation to do 150 hours of community service.

Although a lot more money is involved in the Duffy case, most of that is for expense claims that flowed from the unusual nature of his appointment to the Senate and that of another former media star, Pamela Wallin, in January 2009.

Although both were then Ontario residents who had also spent most of their lives in this province working for the CTV television network, Duffy was appointed to represent Prince Edward Island and Wallin's appointment was as a senator for Saskatchewan.

Under the Senate's rules as we understand them, senators are required to own property and spend most of each year in the province they represent, and may bill the government for expenses related to their time spent at Ottawa, including those of a secondary residence there.

That being the case, a senator from P.E.I. could appropriately claim expenses related to a secondary residence he or she had in Ottawa, and so could any senator whose permanent residence was too far from Ottawa to be considered within commuting distance.

One question that no one seems to have asked is why the prime minister didn't appoint both Duffy and Wallin to represent Ontario. Although all 24 seats allotted to the province might have been filled at the time, openings would surely have occurred in a matter of weeks or months, thanks to the compulsory retirement age of 75.

In the unusual circumstances of their appointment, both senators must have asked around as to the rules for filing expenses, and in particular whether they could bill the government for expenses related to their Ottawa homes.

In the likely absence of any paper trail, much would depend on witnesses' memories from conversations that took place many years earlier.

In our view, the advice he probably got, and the apparent lack of clarity in the expense rules at the time, should make most of the 31 charges against Senator Duffy fall well short of the criminal standard of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Don't 'improve'
Belfountain roads

The following letter, addressed to Ontario Finance Minister Charles Sousa, was submitted to the Citizen for publication.

It is widely reported that despite an expansive provincial budget, yours is the responsibility for eliminating government deficit. Here is an idea to save several million dollars while winning the loud acclaim of local constituents: Cancel the unpopular plan to "improve" the roads and install sidewalks in the hamlet of Belfountain.

The Region of Peel conducted several public consultations on its proposed sidewalks for our historic 100-house hamlet and was met with universal dismay. The improvements, part of a $32 million upgrading of four regional roads, including Mississauga Road and Bush Street that pass through the village, will destroy the character of the village. Roadway rain and melt-water is at risk of being channeled into the Credit River (there being no drain system in Belfountain); instead of being absorbed by the soil. Mature trees will be felled and a suburban atmosphere will be thrust upon our rural settlement. No-one who lives here wants or needs these changes; yet the Region is deaf to the voices of reason and fiscal responsibility Directly or indirectly, the province will provide part of the funding for the proposed changes. It strikes us, the elected Belfountain Community Organization, that a cash-short government should seize every opportunity, such as this, to eliminate unwanted expenditures and reduce its deficit.

Incidentally, the red sandstone of the Queen's Park Legislature came from the historic quarries of Belfountain. Our hamlet lies within the Niagara Escarpment, the Green Belt and a UNESCO designated World Biosphere Reserve.

Save $32 million, and earn the thanks of voters. Sounds like a win-win to us.

"You rang" was one of the revered catch phrases in the popular '60s sitcom The Addams Family.

It was the line spoken by the hulking butler Lurch, played by the equally hulking Ted Cassidy.

According to some sources, the role was not meant to be a speaking part. But Cassidy adlibbed the line during some early shoots, and it stuck.

Cassidy's life was short — only 46 years.

He was born this day, July 31, 1932.

Discovering a good tale

My wife and I spent Friday evening taking in a performance at Rose Theatre in Brampton.

Although I had been to that facility a number of times for various reasons, I had never actually seen a production there, and the same was the case for Beth. But she had been going through a schedule for the Rose some weeks ago, and looked up July 25, knowing that was our anniversary (16th, for those who are curious), and found something that seemed interesting.

It was a Summer Theatre Series 2014 presentation of Sleuth. There will be other performances in the coming weeks, and it's recommended.

Beth put forth the idea to me, and I lost very little time following her lead. Theatre is always a nice way to spend an evening or celebrate an anniversary. As well, Beth knows the story has always been a favourite of mine.

Alas, Sleuth is one of those stories that's rather hard to describe without giving away too much of the plot. Suffice to say it's set in England and involves people playing mind games with each other. If you've seen it, then you know what I mean. If you haven't seen it, then see it.

But be careful what you see. By all means, take in the production at the Rose.

Or you might want to find a version of the original 1972 movie, which featured Laurence Olivier and Michael Caine. That's how I discovered the story, and by accident too.

Bill Rea

It was in the early 1970s, and the TV show MASH was very prominent on the tube. My family watched it regularly, and my mother was able to find a copy of the book on which the story was based, by Richard Hooker, for me in time for Christmas that particular year.

I read it, enjoyed it (although I have always thought the writing was even worse than mine), then lent it to my friend John, who lived up the street.

Then, during the dull days of summer the year (I think) I was 15, one of the local movie houses was putting on a double feature — MASH and something called Sleuth. Both John and I were anxious to see the movie from which this popular TV show had sprung, and we had enough remaining from our respective allowances to cover the cost. The mile or so we had to walk was not that big a deal for two fit young teens, so we made our way to the evening showing (John's younger brother Peter and his friend Dave went to the afternoon showing, but more about that later).

The fact is, I was a little disappointed in MASH, which was the first movie shown. Perhaps my expectations were too high.

The movie ended, and John and I killed time in the theatre lobby, debating whether we should hang around for that other movie.

I had never heard of Caine, and was far too young to appreciate the artistic contributions of Olivier.

"Who the hell is Laurence Oliver?" I asked John at one point, having misread the marquee.

Eventually, we reasoned that we had already paid to get in, so we might as well take in the show.

I'm very glad we did.

In addition to a colourful set, splendid acting and some pretty pithy dialogue, much of which is used in stage productions (I've subsequently seen the film often enough to know), I think that was the first movie I ever saw that actually asked me to think. I walked out of that theatre that night a very enthralled young man.

John and I made our way home, and found Peter and Dave sitting on his front stoop as we arrived. They naturally asked us what we thought of the movies, and the two younger guys thought I was nuts when I commented on how much I had enjoyed Sleuth.

I haven't heard from any of those guys in more than 30 years.

In the summer of 1993, I took my vacation in Prince Edward Island. I noticed on a community announcement board that said a local theatre group was putting on a production of Sleuth that evening. I was unattached at the time, and had nothing else to do, so away I went.

Again, I was very glad I did.

Don't get the wrong idea. Just because it's Sleuth doesn't mean it's good.

They remade the movie in 2007, with Caine playing the role Olivier nailed so many years before. I've seen it. Don't waste your time.

Keep those calls coming

I'm afraid I have to work in an apology this week.

Some of you might have had trouble getting in touch with us at the Citizen last week. The explanation is as simple as it was frustrating.

We lost our phone service in the office shortly before noon last Tuesday, and it stayed out for about 48 hours. In addition to not being able to make or receive phone calls at the office, we lost our internet service, which meant we couldn't get or receive emails either.

As the song goes, "Don't it always seem to go, That you don't know what you've got, Till it's gone."

Like I stated above, it was frustrating.

True, we were able to stay in contact with the world with our cell phones, but we were still operating at a disadvantage.

From my point of view, Tuesday is deadline day. There were a lot of emails I was expecting and needed to have before things could proceed very far. Fortunately, I can access my work-related emails on my laptop (I plan to make plenty of use of that capacity during my upcoming vacation). Unfortunately, I need Wi-Fi to access them, and that was down in the office. Fortunately, I have Wi-Fi at home, so that's where I headed early Tuesday afternoon to get my emails. I also took advantage of the situation to make myself some lunch, thus sparing myself the expense of buying it.

But that was essentially winging it. What was really needed was phone service in the office.

There were some calls made by various folks in the office (on our cells, obviously) in an effort to get some help from the service provider. But we were still down when we called it a day Tuesday.

Wednesday is the day the Citizen is put together for publication, and I'm usually up and going at 6 such mornings. The first thing I did last Wednesday morning was call the office, hoping I would get the answering system, which would have meant the phones were back up. I didn't, meaning I had an interesting day to look forward to.

We kept trying to get assistance from the service provider. I talked to one representative on my cell, and she gave me two toll-free numbers, which could likely be useful. I called the first one, and was immediately congratulated on winning an all-expense-paid trip to Barbados. Considering the mood I was in, I was very tempted to take them up on it.

Production day requires very frequent communications, both electronically and by phone, with our Orangeville office. The only way to do it was for me to pack up all my stuff and head up there.

Don't feel too sorry for me. Think what the poor folks in Orangeville had to put up with.

Everything came back on at about 11 last Thursday morning. My day was made when I got the news.

So if you were trying to get in touch with us, either by phone or email during that 48-hour period and were unable to, you now know why.

Sorry for any inconvenience. If you need more info, I'm afraid that will have to wait until I get back from Barbados.

Canada continues to stand in solidarity with Israel

The indiscriminate rocket attacks from Gaza on Israel threaten the lives of innocent civilians.

These reprehensible actions by Hamas and other militant groups are acts of terror. Canada unequivocally stands behind Israel. We call on our allies and partners in the international community to also condemn this violence and stand in solidarity with Israel to help bring an end to this conflict.

Israel and Canada have a strong relationship rooted in history that is reinforced by our shared values and interests. Truly, our shared values of freedom, democracy, and rule of law make us the most natural of allies. Despite daily attacks on these rights, Israel is the only country in the Middle East that is anchored in these ideals, allowing human rights, political stability and economic the Middle East. We remain hopeful that a democratic Palestinian state will one day live peacefully alongside the Jewish State of Israel.

Hamas and its allies are solely responsible for the current crisis. Their complete disregard for human life and use of human shields to further terror in the region is unacceptable and will not lead to peace. Canada mourns the death and suffering of innocent Israeli and Palestinian civilians. It is Israel's obligation to defend itself from these indiscriminate attacks and we applaud the extraordinary steps taken by Israel's Defense Forces to reduce civilian casualties.

Our government will continue to stand in solidarity with Israel, as we remain committed to promoting Canadian values of freedom, democracy, and rule of law at home and abroad.

Tour de Terra Cotta's 10th edition goes this Monday morning

By Bill Rea

One of the major events on Terra Cotta's calendar goes this coming Monday. The 10th annual Tour de Terra Cotta will be a source of excitement throughout the village to mark the Civic Holiday.

The day will feature a number of cycling events, starting at 7:45 a.m. with youth time trials, for young people aged eight to 16, before the youth road races start going at 9 a.m. The day will culminate with the Elite Road Race, consisting of 12 laps around the 8.68-kilometre course. That event is for anyone aged 17 to 59, and it's due to start at 1:30 p.m.

The race course starts on King Street in the village (in front of Terra Cotta Inn). From the starting line, racers head east, then south on Heritage Road (going up the only hill on the course), then west on Old School Road and north on Winston Churchill Boulevard, heading back into the village.

Race Director Brad Hains said the focus of the event has changed a bit for this year.

"We are taking the net proceeds and directing them out in the community," he said.

Caledon Meals on Wheels will be benefitting from the proceeds, as well as Terra Cotta Community Hall.

As well, the race supports Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Peel.

In June, race organizers, in cooperation with the Brampton Cycling Club and Caledon Hills Cycling, presented bikes to 16 little brothers and sisters.

In addition, three Caledon high school graduates were awarded $1,000 Ted Webb Scholarships, in honour of the race's founder.

"I had nothing to do with it," Webb said. "I'm happy to see it."

Webb, 81, said he will be standing down from the Elite Race, but will take part in the six-lap Intermediate Road Race, commenting the hill on the course is starting to be a bother.

"I can still climb, but I just need to take my time now," he said.

Webb said the growth of the event over the years still impresses him.

"It's just amazing growth," he remarked. "The whole community's behind this."

This year's event is expected to attract more than 500 racers and over 1,200 spectators.

"It's a community event that's truly for all cyclists," Hains observed. "We're not only celebrating the fastest in the Elite Road Race, but acknowledging and rewarding the Most Improved Rider. Our goal is to encourage as many cycling enthusiasts as possible."

Hains also said the primary goal of the race, after running a safe even, is to make as much money for designated charities as possible.

"As the race grows in popularity, so does our level of community support," he said. "This year we're giving back to our community in a number of creative ways."

Hains said the main hope now is for good weather.

"Fingers crossed that we have good weather and a good turnout," he said.

No changes in garbage collection for holiday

This coming Monday (Aug. 4) is a holiday, but there will be no change in the garbage collection schedule in Caledon for the remainder of the week as a result.

Peel Region offices and non-emergency services will be closed Monday for the Civic Holiday, reopening Tuesday.

All Community Recycling Centres (CRCs) in Peel will be closed Monday, and will reopen Tuesday.

TransHelp service hours will be from 6 a.m. Monday to 1 a.m. the following morning. Service will be provided by taxi vendors, but not available by bus. Accessible Transportation offices will be closed. Regular office hours and bus service will resume Tuesday.

The Peel Art Gallery, Museum and Archives (PAMA) will be closed Monday, reopening Tuesday. Visit pama.peelregion.ca for more information on exhibits and programs.

Other Regional services that will be closed Monday include Access Peel; Assessment; Ontario Works, Peel Access to Housing and Service Access-Early Learning Services; Breastfeeding Clinics; Children's Services Operations; Dental Services at Peel Public Health Clinics; Employment Resource Centres; Healthy Sexuality Clinics; Human Services Reception; Ontario Works in Peel; Peel Living; Public Works Reception; and Rent Supplement

For emergencies related to food, shelter, medication and personal supports, call the Ontario Works after-hours line at 905-793-9200 or the Region's main line at 905-791-7800.

Predictable report shrugged off

NATIONAL AFFAIRS
Claire Hoy

I must have missed the memo.

Until earlier this year, when Prime Minister Stephen Harper and Justice Minister Peter MacKay publicly criticized Supreme Court Chief Justice Beverly McLachlin, I had no idea that our unelected and unaccountable Supremes were omnipotent.

Oh sure, we're all aware of the prevailing view in the law profession and the mainstream media that judges magically lose their personal biases the moment they're elevated to the bench. (This is particularly true of Liberal appointees, apparently; less true of Conservative appointees. But there you are.)

And many Canadians – to my amazement I admit – somehow think that judges should have more say than our elected politicians and that somehow judicial decisions are more democratic than political decisions. Beats me, but it seems to be a widely held view.

The notion that judges set aside their own personal experiences and views when rendering decision is, to this writer at least, totally absurd. Nobody does that.

The best anybody can aim for is fairness and balance, but the fact of the matter is everybody views the world through their own prism and there's no way anybody can wipe their brains clean and approach issues from a completely unbiased perspective.

In any event, you may recall that when Harper chose Justice Marc Nadon to fill a vacancy on the Supreme Court there was an immediate hue and cry from the Quebec legal community, many of whom were outraged that Nadon, who was from Quebec but practised in Ontario, was essentially not Quebec-enough to represent that province on the court.

Ultimately, the matter was brought before the Supreme Court itself – clearly a direct conflict of interest since they were being asked to rule on a matter affecting who would join them in the court (but then, that's okay, because, as we mentioned earlier, the Supremes are untainted by normal human biases and can rule absolutely on strict merits without so much as a hint of self-interest.)

The court – rather predictably – ruled that Nadon wasn't eligible and Harper has since moved on with another appointment.

However, during the process leading up to the Nadon affair it seems the Sainted McLachlin phoned MacKay to warn him that their could be a legal problem with his proposed lists of new appointments, an action both Harper and MacKay characterized as inappropriate, suggesting it was tantamount to McLachlin lobbying the government.

Well, that was just too much for most of the Canadian law profession. The thought that a Supreme could possibly be anything but pure as the driven snow is really too horrible to contemplate and most demanded that Harper and MacKay slit their own throats and throw themselves into the Rideau River for daring to question the motives of the Sainted McLachlin.

Then, after a flurry of outrage with the legal profession circling the wagons – as most professions tend to do – a gang of law professors took the matter to the Geneva-based International Commission of Jurists – not just the ICJ, but the "respected" ICJ according to a Star "news" story; respected by themselves to be sure.

This group, set up in 1952 as an advocacy group for the legal eagles – which guarantees it will be fair, balanced and unbiased at all times about all things – subsequently released a report on the matter and – surprise, surprise – demanded that both Harper and MacKay apologize for daring to diminish the Sainted status of McLachlin by suggesting she is capable of anything but complete and utter purity of thought and action.

The IJC said it considers the criticism of McLachlin "was not well-founded and amounted to an encroachment upon the independence of the Chief Justice. Apparently she and her colleagues haven't been encroached upon too much since almost every recent decision they've made has gone against things the elected government of the country has tried to do. But there you are.

For their part, the Prime Minister's Office didn't even reply to the IJC's request for an explanation – to their credit, I say – and simply shrugged at news of the predictable report.

It is true that politicians of all stripes and at all levels are often untrustworthy – although not always – and do things that tick off a lot of people.

But, unlike appointed judges, we can boot them out when they misbehave.

And if judges really can't handle some mild criticism from the elected government, it makes you wonder how they possibly relate to the day-to-day concerns of those of us who do not get to share each other's bathwater in the lofty heights of judicial purity.

What does success mean to you? Do you have goals you want to accomplish?

Success can be defined as "achieving a specific short or long term goal within a period of time". These goals can be personal, financial or professional. Our clients work hard to achieve goals that are critical to their health and to the health of their children. They are focused on goals like having nutritious food on the table and heat in their homes.

We meet with clients on a monthly basis, or more often, depending on their particular care plan. Each meeting is important because they are directed toward the client's success. We offer supportive counselling, information and referrals and provide community resources for individuals and families. We work very closely with people to set specific, measurable, achievable, relevant and time-bound resources and goals, short or long term. The goals vary, depending upon circumstances and can include:

- Providing children the opportunity to be involved in recreational activities.
- Going to the dentist for the first time in several years.
- Learning a new skill or budgeting finances.
- Working closely with additional supports to secure employment.

These are just some of many goals that clients have successfully achieved through their work with us. With a mindset that says, "I can do this", your skills, and CCS support and resources, you can succeed at anything!

If you require further information and support to reach your goals, please contact the CCS Counselling and Care Coordination Program at the Exchange at 289-966-1715.

Brewers end stellar season with a doubleheader split

By Jake Courtepatte
On the tail of a three-game win streak, the Bolton Brewers looked to end their season on a high note with two games in Midhurst against the Barrie Angels last Wednesday.
The Brewers entered the doubleheader needing one win to clinch second spot in the North Dufferin Baseball League (NDBL) standings.
The Angels appeared ready to battle for eighth place, jumping out on top of Bolton 5-0 through three innings.
The Brewers would not score until the top of the seventh, but by then it was too late. The Angels took the first game 6-3, tightening their grip on the final playoff spot.

The team struggled to string together hits all game, as 11 hits translated into only three runs.
Game 2 saw the Bolton squad once again rise to their potential, playing shutout ball as Andrew White tossed six innings while only giving up four hits. Trent Barwick came on in relief in the seventh, striking out two for a 1-2-3 inning.
Brett Chater went three-for-four with a run, while Brett Bond picked up a double to the gap eventually coming in to score. Mike Wallace Jr. and Travis Rumney also crossed the plate for the Brewers, who would take the game 4-0 to split the doubleheader.

Chater's run would pad his lead at the top of the NDBL scoring, finishing the season with 30 runs.
A perennially successful team, coach Mike Wallace told the Citizen that the Brewers' 2014 season was "a little more difficult than most."
"We battled the injury bug all year," he said. "So we needed some guys to step up, and they did. We worked through the injuries, and we're glad to be where we are."
Wallace said he was glad to see a deeper roster for the Brewers last Wednesday, as multiple players returned from injuries or otherwise missed games.

The Brewers now face the seventh seed Clearview Orioles in the first round of the Strother Cup, a team they held a 1-1 record against in the regular season.
Wallace and the Brewers will not be taking the Orioles lightly, as they finished the season on a 4-0-1 swing to jump into playoff contention.
"They kind of came on late," said Wallace. "So they're a different team than they were at the start of the season."
Playoff action begins next week. For playoff schedules, visit www.ndbl.ca

Dodgers miss NDBL playoffs, focusing on the future

Damien Allison pitched 29.1 innings this season for the Dodgers, giving up 28 runs on 33 hits.

By Jake Courtepatte
Coach Michael Gemmiti likened the Bolton Dodgers' 2014 season to that of the 2013 Blue Jays.
"We lost a lot of players, but got a lot of good guys back," said Gemmiti. "It just didn't work out for us."
Gemmiti was right, as the Dodgers dropped four of their last six games to finish in 11th spot in the NDBL standings, seven points out of playoff contention.
The team began their week last Wednesday, facing the Clearview Orioles in the last home game of the season. They dug themselves into an early hole defensively, giving up one run in each of the first three innings to trail 3-0.
The woes continued into the top of the fourth, when starting pitcher Damien Allison walked the Clearview batter to load the bases with zero outs. The next batter also walked, keeping the bases loaded and adding a run. A sacrifice fly and a deep fly ball would bring in two more runs in the inning, making it a 6-0 game.
The Dodgers' lone spark of offense came in the bottom of the fifth, when Marlon

Young scored off a base hit to cut the lead to five. However, Clearview would add three more to end the game 9-1.
Gemmiti, who led the team offensively this season with a .349 batting average, couldn't find his rhythm going zero-for-three on the night.
Orioles' pitcher Chris Esson went a complete game, allowing only one run on six hits.
"The guy just threw a good game," said Gemmiti. "We couldn't get much out of him."
Despite coming off a lopsided loss, the Dodgers were able to turn it around for their final game of the season in Angus Sunday. The visitors came out on top 8-1. It was a positive note on which to end the season, having given up the most runs in the league at 176.
After the game, coach Andrew English commented on the team's inconsistent offensive production over the season.
"Our bats just struggled up and down all year," English observed. "This year has been a little more down that up unfortunately. We just weren't able to string together a rally that often. But that's baseball, I guess."
Coach Mark Kellett also spoke on the team's batting, adding that his players can hit, "it's just a matter of being able to move the bat."

However, English is keeping his chin up when it comes to the team's future.
"We'll make some adjustments next year. We've got a good core group of guys, so a fresh start next year with a couple new faces will be good."

Mayor Marolyn Morrison dropped the ceremonial first ball in last week's 2014 Ontario Ball Hockey Federation (OBHF) Atom/Peewee Provincial Minor Championships. Brandon Hillier of the Milton Mad Men and Shane Thrower of the atom Caledon Bulldogs took the faceoff. Morrison was flanked by Dave Eccleston and Frank Rocca of the host Bulldogs and Under-16 Team Canada members Ryan Nicholson, Daniel Heelers and Ryan Eccleston.

Bulldogs host Provincial championships

By Bill Rea
It was something of a feather in the cap of the Caledon Bulldogs, as they recently hosted the Provincial championships in three ball hockey divisions.
And the hosts celebrated by winning in two of them.
Mayor Marolyn Morrison and members of the U16 Team Canada Ball Hockey squad were on hand at the arena in Caledon East Arena for the opening ceremonies of the weekend tournament, which featured more than 30 teams competing at the atom, peewee and bantam levels.
The atom team from Caledon just missed advancing from the first round. In the end, the Oakville Rangers prevailed 7-1 over the Milton Mad Dogs to take the hardware.
The peewee Bulldogs needed overtime to prevail in their championship match against the Oakville Rangers. Andrew DoPaco scored an amazing overtime goal on a great rush from Jada Christian and Thomas McKeown to win the first ever crown for Caledon.
They had a bit of a grind to get there. They won their first match 3-1 over the Guelph Cyclones, but faced the Oakville crew in their second outing and endured a 6-2 loss. Their third match went a lot better, and they had a 7-1 victory at the expense of the Georgetown Gladiators to prove it.
The Bulldogs had to face the Guelph crew to get into the championship game, and they ended up doubling them 6-3 for the berth.
The bantam final again saw the Bulldogs facing their foes from Oakville, and the Caledon organization winning its second Provincial title.
Caledon led from start to finish with a 4-2 win over Oakville, led by Ryan Nicholson.
The Oakville squad had gone undefeated throughout the season, and things were shaping up the same way at the tournament as they cruised through their two games of the opening round with a 6-3 win over their Bulldog hosts, and a 4-2 doubling of the Guelph crew.
The bantams will now travel to Winnipeg to represent Ontario at the National Ball Hockey Tournament Aug. 1 to 4.
